AUSTRIANS WINNING

Greeted With Enthusiasm by Population of Czernowitz.

GERMAN WAR ZONE ORDER.

Note to America Tells of Reasons for Blockade on Great Britain.

Col. Eph. W. Lillard, one of the Kentucky's best known politicians, shot and killed himself Wednesday at his home in Danville, Ky. He shot himself through the head, using a revolver. Six years ago Lillard was read out of the democratic party when with three other democratic members of the legislature he bolted the party's nominee, J. C. W. Beckham, for the United States senate, returning the late W. O. Bradley a winner after a long deadlock. As a reward Bradley made Lillard his private secretary and he served in that capacity until the senator's death, some months ago. Lillard was a former colonel in the state militia and was active in democratic politics for many years. He was a native of Lawrenceburg, Ky., but had lived here for twenty years. He is survived by his widow and three children.

The race for Appellate judge in the First District is attracting much attention, with three candidates in the field. Judge C. S. Nunn, of Marion, Ky., son of Judge T. J. Nunn, whose seat he is filling by appointment, for the remainder of this term, is one of the candidates for the Democratic nomination to be made next August. Judge Nunn has made his formal entrance into the race in a card addressed to the voters of the district.

It is said that the two Mayo brothers of Rochester, Minn., the world's most famous surgeons, last year operated on 14,500 patients and it is estimated that their income from surgical operations is from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 a year.

ANOTHER BIG WEEK

In Tobacco Business With Two-Thirds of a Million Pounds Sold Loose.

FACTORIES RECEIVING MORE

No Changes Noted In The Prevailing Prices Before Given.

This has been another busy week in tobacco circles, the receipts amounting to about two thirds of a million pounds on the loose floors, but little less than last week. The receipts at all of the factories on private sales continue heavy, but figures are not available from these deliveries.

Precautions, however, are being taken on this side of the North sea, and although the German government has warned the German people not to expect any sensational developments for some days, the regular cross-channel passenger services have been somewhat curtailed and altered. Otherwise sea-borne trade of the country is proceeding as usual.

In England, Germany's reply to the American note of protest against interference with neutral ships is creating more interest than the threatened blockade, and there is a great deal of curiosity as to what the United States will say in response.

Even Germany's victory over the Russians in East Prussia and northern Poland, and the claim of the Germans to have taken 64,000 prisoners, take second place in these diplomatic questions between the Germans and the neutral nations.

In Germany, however, this second victory of Field Marshal von Hindenburg in the province of which he had long made a military study is being celebrated with the greatest enthusiasm, and the expectation there is that the Russians will take a long time to recover from this blow, even should they make a stand on the Niemen river, as they did last autumn.

It is evident, however, that the Russians are far from being beaten. According to their reports, battles are in progress not far from the East Prussian frontier, and troops are being rushed from the interior to check the German advance, which is being made on a front some 200 miles in extent across the provinces of Vilna and Grodno.

In the Carpathians, heavy fighting continues and the Russians claim to have repulsed all the Austro-German attacks, while in Bukowina the Austrians, with their German supports are pushing across the country. They have occupied Kolomea, in Galicia, about sixteen miles north of the Bukowina frontier. It is again reported—this time officially—that they are in possession of Czernowitz, capital of Bukowina.

The allies, in the hope of relieving the pressure on the Russians, have taken the offensive along the western line, and although the French and German accounts differ as to the result of this, it is evident that the French and British have made gains at some points.

The dispute between Greece and Turkey over an insult to the Greek naval attaché at Constantinople has been settled by a personal apology and the publication of the apology in Turkish newspapers.

SHIP BILL IN CONFERENCE

Democratic Senators Agree to Take Up Appropriation Bills for Time.

COMES UP FEBRUARY 27.

No Extra Session Likely To Be Held and Bill Seems Dead.

Washington, Feb. 19.—Blocked in their efforts to get a vote on the house ship purchase bill, democratic senators agreed to take up appropriation conference until February 27, when it must take its chances of being filibustered to its death on March 4.

Republican senators entered into a "gentleman's agreement" with democratic leaders to let the bill go to conference on condition that appropriation measures be passed within the next ten days to avoid an extra session. The democrats, it was reported, agreed to a reasonable cut in the rivers and harbors appropriation bill, and the republicans in turn gave assurances that they would not filibuster against any appropriation measures. Democrats further agreed that when the ship purchase bill comes out of conference, if any agreement on it ever is reached, the republicans will be given an opportunity to renew their fight against it.

The compact which broke the long struggle was reached late in the day. Administration leaders maintained that it was the best they could hope for, and republican senators insisted that the action meant the bill was dead. All seemed to agree there would be no extra session.

FRANK JAMES IS DEAD

Member of Famous Robber Band Had Been in ill Health for Several Months.

Excelsior Springs, Mo., Feb. 19.—Frank James, of the notorious James gang, died on his farm near here yesterday. James, who was 74 years old, had been in ill health several months.

One of the last members of the robber band whose unparalleled career of crime during the Civil War and the unsettled period that followed kept the people of a dozen states in terror, Frank James had been living the life of a quiet farmer for more than thirty years. The son of a minister, respected throughout the community, Frank James joined Quantrell's guerrillas, together with his brother, Jesse, and took part in the sacking of Lawrence, Kan.

After the guerrillas disbanded the James brothers became bandits. Many notorious crimes of the decade following the war have been laid at the door of the James-Younger gang, of which the surviving members were Frank James and Cole Younger, the latter of whom is now living at Lees Summit, Mo.

Detectives surrounded the James home near Kearney, Mo., on January 25, 1875, and threw a lighted bomb into the house, thinking to kill the James brothers. It exploded, tearing the arm off their mother and killing their brother, Archie.

In 1882, after Jesse James had been shot and killed in his home in St. Joseph, Mo., by Bob Ford, also a bandit, for a reward of $50,000, Frank James surrendered in Jefferson City, Mo.

After his surrender, James surrendered at Independence, Mo., where he was held in jail three weeks and later sent to Gallatin, where he remained in jail a year awaiting trial.

The trial was hard fought and lasted several weeks. Finally James was acquitted and went to Oklahoma. He never was in the penitentiary and never was convicted of any of the charges against him.

Funeral services have been arranged for Saturday at the farm home. Burial will be in Kearney, Mo.; the little town the former outlaw first knew as a boy.

GEORGE BLEICH

Keeps On Spreading Out At Owensboro.

The once famously popular Peoples theatre has been leased by Geo. A. Bleich, owner of the Empress and Princess theatres of this city and the Princess theatre of Henderson. The old play house will be completely renovated at an early date and converted into a handsome motion picture and vaudeville theatre. The new theatre, as yet unnamed, will not be a moving picture house in the sense the Empress now is run. Mr. Bleich has always deplored the necessity of charging more than a dime for an attraction at the Empress but the costlier feature shows come to him at such a price as to make it necessary. Many splendid features cannot be handled at the Empress, as there are not sufficient nights to place them. This will be booked for the new house at a price commensurate with the expenses.

Another attraction will be high-class vaudeville at popular prices.—Owensboro Inquirer.

JUDGE C. S. NUNN.

Judge C. S. Nunn, of Marion, Crittenden County, Kentucky, is a candidate at the coming August Democratic primary for election as Judge of the Court of Appeals from the First Appellate District. The district includes Muhlenberg, Hopkins, Webster, Union, Christian and every county in Kentucky west to the Mississippi River.

The election is for the unexpired term of his father, Judge T. J. Nunn, who resigned from the bench last March on account of ill health. Judge T. J. Nunn gave up nearly five years of his elective term, and Judge C. S. Nunn is serving a part of that term by appointment of the Governor, the appointment having been made upon the recommendation of all of the judges of that court. Under the law, the appointment is effective until the November election. This election is for the remainder of Judge T. J. Nunn's term—three years. Judge C. S. Nunn hopes the people will ratify the Governor's appointment, and submits his service upon the bench for the people to decide whether it is worthy of endorsement. His duties upon the bench will require his presence in Frankfort until about July 1st, so that he will have very little opportunity to make a personal canvass of his district.

Wednesday was the 53d anniversary of the battle of Fort Donelson, between 27,000 Union soldiers and 14,000 Confederates. This was the first great victory won by Gen. Grant. Nowadays, a battle with only 41,000 men engaged would hardly be classed as a skirmish.

The amended government ship bill, rushed through the house, failed to gain any ground when it reached the senate, and administration leaders are uncertain as to its fate. Wednesday it was discovered that the amended bill had failed to satisfy recalcitrant Democrats and progressive Republicans. Without support of either of these factions, the bill could not be passed. Without some agreement in conference, its chance of passing is remote.

In circuit court at Paducah, a jury returned a verdict for the defendant in the suit of James E. Wilhelm against Hon. John K. Hendrick for $1,000 for services he claimed he rendered as manager of the defendant's campaign when he was a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor several years ago. Most of the claim was barred by the statute of limitations. Wilhelm formerly was editor of the Register, a morning newspaper, and contended that he had been employed to manage the Hendrick campaign.

Worth Weight In Gold.

Abingdon, Va.—Mrs. Jennie McCall, of this place, says: "I had been troubled with female complaints, for over ten years. I could not walk or stand on my feet, and had been almost confined to the house, for a long time. I began to take Cardui, the woman's tonic, and now I can walk anywhere I want to go. Cardui is worth its weight in gold." This is a high estimate on a plain, herb medicine, yet there are thousands of women who would gladly pay this price for a remedy to relieve their suffering. BRUNETTE OR BLONDE

Girl Always Dreamed of Light-
Haired Lover, Got Dark One.

By HARMONY WELLER.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

During the 18 months of her engagement and preparation for her marriage Martha had never quite become reconciled to the fact that she had chosen for a life partner a man of blonde type. Always, from her earliest dreams of love, she had pictured a mate whose hair reflected the glory of the sun and whose eyes were blue as the night sky.

But alas for ideals when flaunted by facts. Martha had fallen in love with David McVicker, and his hair was as black as the raven's wing and his eyes were the deep brown of the Arab's dusky orbs.

"Oh, dear!" she sighed, "I seem to get so weary looking at dark hair." Martha cast a fleeting glance at her reflection, which revealed tresses as black as the shadow of the mountains and eyes only less dark because of the glow of dull red within their lovely depths. "But I suppose since I am to sail Saturday for London and to meet David again, I had better cheer up and forget my golden-haired knight of fancy."

Martha had not seen David McVicker for 18 months.

Martha blushed over the fact that she had succumbed to David's wooing after a scant two weeks' acquaintance, one of which had been spent on shipboard. After a second week David had returned to his native land, leaving Martha with a most lovely solitaire on her finger and a more or less startled acknowledgment of her engagement.

The six months that were expected to intervene between meetings had dragged into 18, and it was with slightly lessened enthusiasm that Martha made preparation for the long-delayed trip.

When the New York sailed into British waters and the mail came on board Martha got a letter from David in which he regretted the fact that he could not meet her at Liverpool. He had been sent to Belfast for at least three weeks on business. Martha sighed, but was not desperately disappointed. David had informed her that Andre Lequeux, a Belgian, who was stopping with him, would meet her and pilot her safely to London. Martha found herself wondering what Andre Lequeux would be like, and thinking that she would rejoice in knowing anyone from the now famous country of Belgium. She pondered on the question as to how he would be able to find her among the passenger list, but Martha had not reckoned on David having provided Lequeux with a photograph.

It was not difficult then, upon reaching the wharf at Liverpool, to find herself facing a most wonderfully golden-haired young man who introduced himself as Andre Lequeux.

Martha smiled and enjoyed the firm grip of the Belgian's hand. She smiled again inwardly when she observed that his eyes were the deep blue of the night sky. If she sighed, Andre did not know that she was comparing him favorably with her dream man of past days.

Lequeux seemed a most capable person and had seen to her luggage, and a customs inspector had put her and her small bags on the train before Martha quite realized it.

Andre did not know that she was comparing him favorably with her dream man of past days.

The trip up to London passed without event, save a swift sense of understanding between Lequeux and the girl to whom David was engaged. The Belgian did not leave her until he had seen her comfortably ensconced in the little private hotel in Holland Park.

After that it seemed as if all life centered in that which concerned Andre Lequeux. Perhaps it was the absolute calmness with which he accepted the fact that he was a refugee, deprived of his home and robbed of the business he had built up in Antwerp that first attracted Martha to him. He had been in the civic guard at the time of the bombardment of Antwerp and after seeing his home and his business premises blown up by the enemy's shrieking shells he had come to England—that haven for all refugees. David McVicker had taken Lequeux into his home and friendship.

The state of affairs began to look ominous. Martha knew that she could never marry David. She had fought desperately against the charm of the Belgian but her struggle had been useless. It was as if a mighty torrent had rushed down from the mountainside and swept her completely into his keeping. Apart from his being the ideal of her youthful dreams in physical beauty he possessed a gentleness of manner, a keen sense of humor and personal charm that Martha loved in spite of herself.

As for Lequeux, the situation was tragic. He had never before loved a girl and now fate had elected to rob him of home, business and the right to tell that girl that he loved her. Life seemed a queer medley of untold sorrow to him, but his smile was as ready and his manner as gentle as the world of joy lay before him.

It was beginning to be most difficult to follow David's instructions in the matter of entertaining Martha Lequeux was forced into the girl's presence through David's desire that she be not lonesome while in London and until he himself returned to take her about. More and more the Belgian was falling in love with David's girl, but he was constantly on guard lest he betray his secret and thus precipitate a crisis that meant a final separation from David and David's sweetheart.

In the meantime, David, over in Belfast, had lost his heart to a little Irish girl and felt himself a cad. The long time that had passed since seeing Martha had worn down the enthusiastic desire he had felt for her and now only a deep regret, such as he would have felt for his brother's wife, remained. David cursed himself and his fickle nature, but knew not how to stem the current of events that seemed likely to hurl him and Martha over the matrimonial borders. He felt vaguely that Martha was not desperately in love with him and that it would not break her heart were he to be quite frank with her, but David recoiled from the hurt he might inflict. The little Irish girl smiled upon him and David's business held him another fortnight in Belfast.

Martha had intended to wait until his return to London before terminating her engagement to David. Upon learning of his intention to remain away from her another two weeks, she felt as if this would be a good opportunity. She wrote him a letter which blamed him not a little for his neglect of her—blamed him for having placed his friend in such a position. And then she told him everything. It was hard to post the letter and yet Martha could not help feeling that the hurt would not be severe; if David had cared so much he could have found excuse for seeing her before this.

It was five days before she received her answer—David had been unable to put his answer to her letter on paper. He had wanted to be honest with her—to tell her all as frankly as she had told him. And it had been difficult. When Martha read the letter telling of the little Irish girl she laughed. The Belgian was in the room when she received it and he had asked permission to read David's letter.

"It's an Irish girl!" she said.

The Belgian started. "What—David?" he asked, as if he had been guessing at the truth.

Martha nodded.

"Write him that it's—a Belgian—with you," he laughed.

Martha blushed. "I—I've already done it," she confessed. And then she explained everything to him to his entire satisfaction.

Wanted to Know Her.

Ida Hamilton, who will be recalled by lovers of clever acting for her splendid work with Mrs. Fiske and other dramatic actresses, is now at the Little theater in Philadelphia, where she has been winning high honors. The other evening she went to the fashionable hotel for a cup of tea, and as she walked down Broad street could not help overhearing the conversation between two women who had just witnessed a performance. One observed that she had enjoyed the play immensely.

"And I wish that I knew Miss Hamilton. I would give anything in the world if I knew her."

Miss Hamilton determined to gratify her desire, so she approached and announced herself.

"Are you Miss Ida Hamilton? Miss Hamilton of the Little theater?"

"I am," was her modest reply.

"Oh, I am so glad to see you," she gushed. "I have so wanted to know you. Won't you tell me the name of your dressmaker?"

Science and Patriotism.

No nation has done greater service to science than the German. And the world of science, which is cosmopolitan, not national, gladly and freely recognizes it. But does anyone who knows anything of the conditions of scientific work, suppose that work would not have been done by Germans unless there had been a German empire? To state the notion is to refute it. A man of science may be a patriot, but his patriotism has nothing to do with his science. He goes to learn where he can learn best, and to work where he can work best; and the result of his work is a treasure, not for his country alone, but for mankind.—G. Lowes Dickinson in the Atlantic Monthly.

Funds for Infant Welfare Work.

New York city spends $250,000 annually in infant welfare work. For this purpose the city of Chicago appropriates only $4,000 a year. The claim is made by those who profess to know that if that city were to spend $125,000 a year for this purpose, virtually all of the 7,000 babies who die in Chicago each year might be saved, the money value representing the saving in human lives being estimated at $7,000,000. Private organizations such as the Infant Welfare society of Chicago have shown how baby lives may be saved, but if further progress is to be made, it is averred, the work must be concentrated in the municipality.

COVER FOR TROOPS

Moving Shields Advocated in Warfare.

Idea Has Been Seriously Put Forth and Is Being Considered by Powers at War—Its Method of Operation.

As for a French officer's suggestion of moving shields, an American has already invented one and has written about it to the heads of the belligerent governments. He offers to demonstrate the efficiency of his device.

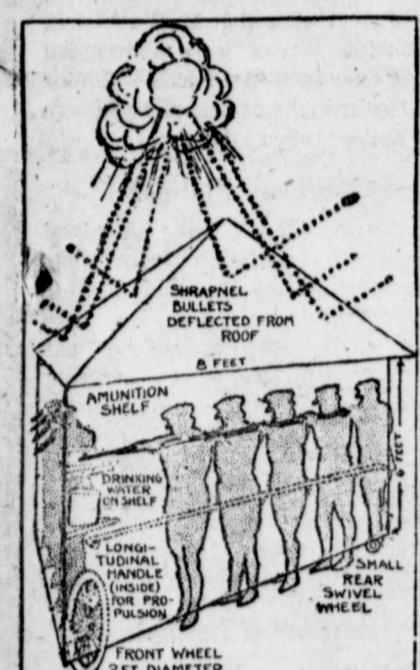

The "bullet deflector," as he calls it, is made of two sheets of steel six feet wide, eight to ten feet high and one-quarter-inch thick. The sheets are jointed at an acute angle, so as to make a triangular shield, the base of which is open. The device, which weighs 1,200 pounds, is mounted on wheels and can be trundled along by the ten men it can shelter. At a suitable height are holes through which rifles can be aimed. It has compartments for water and food, and a top to protect its occupants from sun and rain and shrapnel.

It can be used, he thinks, to great advantage in infantry advances when the supporting artillery has cleared the way, as the attackers would be safe from rifle fire until they got close enough to charge with the bayonet if they desired. He says that a bullet striking one of the faces of the barbette would glance off harmlessly, and that it would be impervious to machine-gun fire.

For defense he thinks a cavalry charge or a bayonet charge would beat itself to pieces against a wall of steel. Folding shelves could be put into it, and they would make bunks for the crew. On the march it could be drawn by cavalry horses. Its cost would be relatively small.

"I would consider one soldier equipped with the deflector," he says, "more service to his country and cause than 50 not so protected, for the simple reason that he can operate all the time during a long campaign in a hundred battles while the 50 are dead in the trenches. I am aware that many objections will be made to its use in battle, all of which I can easily answer. Its advantage over the stationary defenses, such as sandbags and barricades, would be many.

enemy. A bullet striking the barrier will not throw dust into their eyes to blind them. They will not be exhausted by the laborious process of 'digging in.'

Heavy Wood Best Fuel.

Equal weights of dry, nonresinous wood are said to have practically the same heat regardless of species, and as a consequence it can be stated as a general proposition that the heavier the wood the more heat to the cord. Weight for weight, however, there is very little difference between various species; the average heat for all that have been calculated is 4,600 calories, or heat units, per kilogram. A kilogram of resin will develop 9,400 heat units, or about twice the average for wood. As a consequence, resinous woods have a greater heat value per pound than nonresinous woods, and this increased value varies, of course with the resin content.

Had Eight Sets of Twins.

Squire Robert L. Mitchell, who visited his old home near Ridgeville recently, brought back a bit of rare news. The wife of West Graves, a negro of that section, has just presented her husband with the eighth consecutive set of twins. The young couple have been married about thirteen years, the knot having been tied by Squire Mitchell when he was a justice of the peace. A remarkable circumstance thereof is the fact that in each set of twins was a boy and a girl. There are eight children living, one of each set having died—Caswell (N. C.) CHANCE TO MAKE KENTUCKY GREATEST HOG RAISING STATE

10,000 Hogs Fattened From Slops and Distillers' Dried Grains In Daviess County Alone Last Year

(By Stephen Bolles, in Bourbon Stock Journal).

Kentucky can easily be made the greatest hog-raising State in the Union. That has been demonstrated by Daviess county farmers. Last year about 10,000 hogs were fattened in that county on distillers' slops and dried grains.

So successful were the experiments that the L. H. & St. L. railroad provided switches along their lines for the use of farmers to utilize this by-product of the distilleries for feeding hogs. Special tank cars were also provided for the transportation of both the slops and dried grains.

Makes Prize Winners.

At a great barbecue on the Owensboro Fair Grounds last May, attended by 20,000 farmers and feeders, there were on exhibition scores of fine hogs fattened on distillers' dried grains and slops, and many cash prizes were awarded. Officials from the agricultural department of the State and Federal Government were present and made addresses on the proper care and feeding of hogs and the prevention of cholera. Specimens of distillers' dried grains and slops from various distilleries were also on exhibition and their respective food value were explained by experts.

Fattens Quickly.

One of the greatest advantages in feeding distillers' dried grain is the fact that nothing is lost. The distillers remove only the non-fattening portions of the grain, leaving an average of 40 per cent of protein, which is the element required to fatten stock. It has been supposed by many people that the best way to fatten a hog is to feed hard corn. But corn in the natural state yields about 13 per cent of protein, as much of it passes through the animal undigested. Distillers' dried grains therefore possess about three times the fattening properties of natural corn. By feeding these dried grains with alfalfa, clover or other green stuffs, hogs fatten quicker and better than by the use of corn alone and at very much less cost.

RISING YEAST SAVED SHIP

Old Sailor Says Fermenting Cargo "Riz and Riz" Until Vessel Became Buoyant.

"Yes," said the ancient mariner, waving his long clay pipe in the air as he sat in the inglenook of the Vampire inn, according to London Tit-Bits, "it was the strangest intervention o' Providence and natural law as I've ever experienced. Three days and nights on end we had worked at the pumps, and the ship was getting lower in the water every hour. Then, we know not why, the pumps became dry. No water came, work as we might. The crew stopped and locked at each other aghast. But as for the ship, she began to steady herself, and then gradually rose in the water till her waterline was two feet above the surface. At last a gigantic wave came, and she sailed on the top of it clear over the reef and landed high up the sandy beach. We were saved!"

He paused and then continued: "How it happened?—we had a cargo of yeast aboard, and when the water reached it, it riz and riz, and—" The rest was lost in the applause of the company assembled.

The Farmer's Opportunity.

The greatest single industry in Kentucky is its distilleries. This industry pays more taxes for the maintenance of the State than all other manufacturing industries combined. Thousands of tons of slops containing nutritious, fat-producing elements are dumped into the waste heap simply because Kentucky feeders have not waked up to their opportunity. A comparatively small portion of this by-product is dried and shipped to Europe to be used as dairy feed and for fattening hogs.

But why ship any of these dried grains to Denmark and Holland when we can use them here at home up to the full capacity of every distillery in the State, thereby increasing the profits of hog-raising and adding many millions of dollars annually to the wealth of the farmers of the state.

Cheaper Feed Than Corn.

Farmers should sell the corn they raise at the high price it usually brings, and buy, for less money, more and better feed in the form of distillers' dried grains. By doing this they can fatten more hogs at less cost and sell them in the market for larger profits. It is a simple business proposition that should not be overlooked by the farmer.

Claud R. Clark, the well-known grocer and orator, whose picture is here given, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for his former position of Circuit Court Clerk, from which he retired five years ago. Mr. Clark has for years been the leader of his party in this county, but his friends are not confined to the Republican party. He is widely popular with people of all parties and had never been beaten until the Democratic landslide of 1909 hit him. His success as a business man has been remarkable and his record in the office he again seeks was altogether praise-worthy. He is courteous, affable and attentive and was popular with all who had dealings with his office during the six years he held it. He is one of the finest campagners in the county, a fluent and convincing speaker and a hustler for votes as well as for business when he starts out. He cannot be beaten for the nomination and the Democrat who tackles him in an off year will undertake a big job if he hopes to defeat him.

"OLD NEWSBOYS' DAY"

Observed In Chicago By Business and Professional Men of Prominence.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—A hundred and fifty Chicagoans, who have risen to social professional and financial distinction turned the clock back from twenty to fifty years today and sold newspapers again as they used to when boys.

It was "Old Newsboys' Day." Funds received through the sale of papers will be devoted to the relief of the unemployed through the agency of the municipal industrial commission. Scores of the old time "newsies" offered unique attractions at their street corner sales to increase sales. Some of them dressed as they did years ago, other employed bands and singers and one had a trained bear as an attraction.

Receipts promised to be large as it was agreed no change would be returned to customers.

TENNESSEE HOG RAISER SETS ENVYABLE RECORD

Clarksville, Tenn.—That L. Scott Teasley, of near Cheap Hill, is some hog raiser, is demonstrated by these facts: On February 15, 1914, his Duroc Jersey sow gave birth to a litter of ten pigs, on July 27, 14; fifteen pigs, and again on February 4, 1915, eleven more, making a total of thirty-six pigs in less than a year. On December 14, 1914, Mr. Teasley killed seven of the February 15 litter, the average net weight of which was 206 pounds. This is a record that any hog raiser should be proud of.

learning and superstition—as quaint to the eye of modern science, with its germ theory of disease, aseptic surgery and X-ray, as is flint arrowhead to the crew of a 42-centimeter howitzer.

The exhibits came from the libraries of the medical schools of St. Louis and Washington universities; from the library of the surgeon general of the United States army in Washington, and from the private collections of physicians in St. Louis and other cities.

Dr. George Dock, dean of the medical faculty of Washington university, supplied a facsimile of the diploma conferring a doctor's degree upon William Harvey, who discovered the circulation of the blood. Dr. James Moore's Ball of St. Louis, among scores of other old volumes, loaned "Surgical Works" of Ambrose Pare, the Frenchman who haunted the wars of his time (1509-1590) and became the father of military surgery.

A copy of "the first work on pathology," published at Venice in 1761 by Johannes Baptista Morgagni and entitled "Concerning the Seats and Causes of Disease," was loaned by Dr. Robert E. Schlueter of St. Louis. Among the hundreds of other "quaint and curious volumes of forgotten lore" which were on display were a "Regimen Sanitatis," published in Venice in 1495, three years after the discovery of America, and loaned by Dr. E. C. Streeter of Boston; the "Labyrinth of Medical Errors," published in 1553 by the renowned Theophrastus Paracelsus; the complete "Thesaurus Botanico-Medico-Anatomicus" of Marcellus Maepius, published in 1687, and Thomas Guidott's "On ye Bathe," a treatise concerning the medical qualities of the waters at that resort, which was issued in 1676.

The War's Historian.

"When the history of this war comes to be written" is a constantly recurring journalistic phrase, as if the story of this great conflict could ever be written. You may be fairly certain that no one under the rank of an archangel, in close touch with omniscience, will ever write the full history of the world war. Down below there isn't the knowledge, and there isn't the time. There will be some sectional accounts. But if in the fullness of time a world syndicate succeeds in getting some million tons of print within covers, the public will (one hopes) be thinking of something else.—London Chronicle.

Escorts for Hire in Kansas City.

The young man of engaging manners who is willing to hire himself out as an escort to women is said to have a field for his activities these days. Even in Kansas City the new profession has made its appearance, but it is said to have originated in New York. The bureau fills the order, the girl bears the concert and the young man is well paid for his trouble.

SIENKIEWICZ DESCRIBES MISERY IN POLAND.

POPULAR MECHANICS MAGAZINE FOR MARCH.

PROMINENT KENTUCKY TURFMAN IS INJURED.

Henri Sienkiewicz, the famous Polish novelist and the author of "Quo Vadis" is, like tens of thousands of his compatriots, a refugee, driven from home by the war. He is now at Vevey, Switzerland, with the members of the committee for the relief of victims of the war in Poland, of which he is president, and Ignace Paderewski is vice-president. The latter will visit New York in connection with the Polish work.

No more appalling picture of death, destruction and devastation has ever been drawn than that outlined by Sienkiewicz, who declares it is unique in history. He says:

"Poland has nothing to do with the war. She has been conquered and partitioned. She is not one of the belligerent nations, yet a million and a half of her sons are fighting fratricidal battles in armies of three different warring states. Our country is made the cockpit of the battles of Europe and is devastated from end to end, three-quarters of a million men bearing arms for Germany or Austria.

"Think what this means! When the order for a charge is given hordes of soldiers rush on each other. When they get within striking distance and commence cutting one another down they find the language in which they are uttering their imprecations is their common, natal tongue! It frequently happens that when the Red Cross nurses go to collect the wounded they lift from a heap one man in a German uniform, another in an Austrian, and a third in a Russian—but all three of them Poles.

"The misery is really very great in the kingdom. In Poland alone there are 15,000 villages burned and thousands of chapels and churches damaged or destroyed. Nine out of Poland's 10 provinces have been occupied by Germans, who seized everything they found, even the peasants' chickens. The homeless villagers sought shelter in the forests, where women and children are now dying of cold and hunger by the thousands daily.

"In the whole 100,000 square kilometers of territory in the possession of German and Austrian troops, but one grain of corn, not a scrap of meat nor a drop of milk remained for the civil population. The material losses are estimated at one billion rubles. Agriculture has been ruined and every industry destroyed. Four hundred thousand workers have lost their means of livelihood.

"The state of affairs in Galicia is just as dreadful, too, for from the civil population there the Russians commanded 900,000 horses and 2,000,000 horned cattle, and seized all the corn, leaving that once rich country as barren as a desert. More than 1,000,000 inhabitants sought refuge in other parts of Austria Hungary in sheer destitution."

KITTY LEAGUE PRESIDENT

Will Be Elected Sunday Afternoon at Henderson.

The long clattered for meeting of the Kitty league to elect a president and close the unfinished business of the organization pertaining to accepting towns and arranging for a schedule and the like, will be held at Henderson Sunday afternoon. This is the gist of the accomplishment of Vice President Chester LaRue, who visited the fans of Henderson Wednesday afternoon to arouse interest among the Henites.

From the report made upon their return to Owensboro, Mr. LaRue and William Ling, who was a's in Henderson, learned that Henderson's old stand-by Jake Zimbrow had thrown up the sponge and President Turpin "retired" from baseball. Increase in business caused both to quit the game so 'tis said. Anyway a real live wire exists in the person of Sam Cromwell, who with others will keep the old life in the Kitty as far as Henderson is concerned.

Mr. LaRue also learned that Henderson is in favor of Dr. J. D. Cox of Cairo, as president of the Kitty league. His connections with the Cairo club, which last season proved the most successful club, both financially and in winning the pennant, appear to have qualified him for promotion. Owensboro and Paducah are for a man who will take the reins in hand and give the league good support and Dr. Cox is said to be just the man. The election of the president will take place Sunday and when the conclusion is reached another "doctor" will probably be at the head.

Other inside dope will be handed out at the meeting Sunday and definite plans will be decided upon, by which the league will be directed.—Owensboro Inquirer.

Though Sick and Suffering; At Last Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Richmond, Pa.—"When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a dreadfully rundown state of health, had internal troubles, and was so extremely nervous and prostrated that if I had given in to my feelings I would have been in bed. As it was I had hardly strength at times to be on my feet and what I did do was by a great effort. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning, and had a steady headache.

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was not so bad. I rested better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until it made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I highly praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." —Mrs. FRANK CLARK, 3146 N. Tulip St., Richmond, Pa.

Women Have Been Telling Women for forty years how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health when suffering with female ills. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast. If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It will pay you to do so. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

The Ship Purchase Bill.

Nobody could be more sincerely desirous than we are of presenting the arguments for the Ship Purchase Bill fairly. We have been, and are, wholly open to conviction. We would like to believe that the bill is a good one, and that it would remedy what is undoubtedly a real need. But we have searched in vain for some clear explanation of the thing proposed; and although even President Wilson, in his Indianapolis speech, pronounced American public opinion intensely in favor of the bill, we should not otherwise have discovered that such a sentiment existed, though sympathetically searching for it. That the President, Mr. McAdoo, and others are pushing this bill in the most patriotic spirit, and with the belief that their direct and open method, rather than the indirect plan of subsidies, will best help to re-establish the long-lost American merchant marine, there can be no doubt whatsoever.

The subject is a difficult one, and the country is not yet educated to an understanding of it. The bill was brought forward as a sudden idea for relief in a great emergency; and its proposal was, as we have said, in perfect good faith. If it should not be accepted, the Administration ought not to be regarded as having been defeated upon an essential matter. Nor does it seem just to hold that leading Republican Senators, like Mr. Burton, Mr. Root, Mr. Lodge, and others, have opposed this bill from partisan considerations. Their speeches show that they have not been convinced of the wisdom or practicability of the measure.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for February.

Extremes of Climate.

The coldest place on earth inhabited by man is said to be Verkhoyansk, above the Arctic circle, in north-eastern Siberia. The thermometer there drops to 90 degrees below zero in January, but sometimes rises to 86 degrees above zero in the shade in July, dropping, however, to the freezing point on the warmest summer nights. The hottest place in the world is the interior of the great Sahara desert in Africa, where the thermometer rises to 122 degrees. The wettest place is Greytown, Nicaragua, where the mean annual rainfall is 260 inches. The place of least rain is Port N' L'oth, in South Africa, where less than an inch sometimes falls in a year.

MODERN LIFE AND HEALTH

Medical Journal Reports That in Some Cases World Seems to Show Change for Worse.

In 1873 the mortality of diphtheria in New York was 85 per cent. Today it is about 25 per cent. Since the introduction of the Flexner anti-meningitis serum the mortality from cerebro-spinal fever has been reduced from between 70 and 80 to 23 per cent.

In the sixties, seventies and eighties typhus fever was almost epidemic in New York. In 1893 there were 473 cases. Since 1893 there have been only four cases in the city.

Fulminating, or "black" smallpox is no longer seen.

Dr. Edward Waitzinger reports that in his large hospital practice he has not seen a single case of true cholera infantum in fifteen years.

On the other hand, remarks the New York Medical Journal in citing these changes for the better, there has been an enormous increase in cardiovascular diseases—those affecting the heart and arteries—including kidney troubles.

There has been a steady increase in cancer, while nervous diseases and insanity are notably more prevalent than they ever were before.

PULSE GIVES AWAY SECRET

Alienist Tells How Doubting Swain May Ascertain His Place in "Her" Affections.

The world's meanest man has been discovered. He is an alienist of Washington, and he has presumed to put love on a scientific basis. He has issued a formula by which a doubting swain may ascertain without fail the name of his closest rival for "her" affections.

Here it is:

Carelessly hold "her" wrist, as if idly. Craftily place your forefinger on "her" pulse. Then name over, in casual conversation, the rivals you fear most. When you name the right one "her" pulse will jump scandalously. If it increases something like a hundred beats you might as well quit the race.

To offset this mean betrayal the alienist has issued some hints to the fair sex on how to avoid nervousness. "Scorn gossip," he says, "and don't attend to other persons' business or worry over their troubles, and you will be all right."

But he doesn't say a word as to how Dulcinea might have kept the fatal pulse jump from giving her away.

OUT OF HIS ELEMENT.

"I can show you in two minutes the superiority of the aeroplane over the Zeppelin," said the officious person.

"But I'm not at all interested in aviation," said the other man, with whom he had just scraped an acquaintance.

"The deuce you say! Why, in the course of time aviation may prove of great practical benefit to you—may even help you in your business."

"I'm afraid not."

"Why?"

"I'm a deep-sea diver."

DID HIM GOOD.

"Did that onion poultice I sent you do any good?"

"Did me a heap of good."

"These external applications are often efficacious."

"I applied it internally. Those onions smelt so good that I ate it."

TO BE EXPECTED.

"The only objection I have to Wassherby is that he lets his imagination run away with him."

"Any man who is continually spurring his imagination to renewed efforts shouldn't be surprised if it sometimes runs away with him."

SUITABLE.

"I want to select a light fruit lunch for an electrician."

"How would some electric currents do?"

UNFEMININE EMOTION.

"Wasn't the militant moved by the piteous crying of her children?"

"Yes; she was quite unmanned for the moment."

HIS STATUS.

"Are you a neophyte in political campaigns?"

"Naw, I ain't nuthin' but just a plain beginner."

ALL OWING TO BASHFULNESS

Rudyard Kipling's Somewhat Belated Explanation of Act of Apparent Rudeness.

When Rudyard Kipling was in America some years ago he was entertained at an evening party in New York at the house of the late Richard Watson Gilder, the editor of the Century magazine. One of the numbers on the program which enlivened the occasion was David Bispham's singing of his famous barrack room ballad, "The Hanging of Danny Deever." To the astonishment of the company, when it was all over, Mr. Kipling arose abruptly, said good-night to his host, and, turning his back on the singer, left the room without another word. Some time afterward Mr. Bispham received a visit at his house in London from a gentleman, who said: "I have come at the request of Mr. Kipling, who is not in town just now, to present his apology and regret if, on an evening last winter in New York, he seemed to be rude to you when you had sung his song. The fact is, he is a very bashful man, and he was so moved by the music and your rendering of his poem that he could not trust himself to speak, but bolted from the house."

FAMOUS MARCHES ON RECORD

Soldiers Have Done Some Extraordinary Work When There Has Been Necessity for It.

Just before the battle of Mons the Germans marched 32 miles between seven o'clock in the evening and eight in the morning. The Germans were in heavy marching order, and the fact that the march was mostly by night made the feat more remarkable. At a later stage of the war three allied divisions are said to have marched 31 miles in eight hours. These two marches are considered as among the most extraordinary of the war.

A military work published some years ago says that no army can march more than 200 miles in 15 days. Napoleon considered 210 miles in 20 days a good marching record. One writer estimates the average rate of march of small bodies of infantry at 2 1/4 miles an hour. The same authority declares that an army corps can march but two miles an hour.

In 1870, during the flank march that ended for them so disastrously at Sedan, the French marched but 9 1/2 miles a day. The most rapid march of any large body of foot soldiers during the Napoleonic wars is said to have been that of General Crauford after the battle of Talavera. Crauford's men marched 62 English miles in 21 hours.

But though the physical endurance of man is little if any greater than it ever was, when he is compelled to trust to his own muscles, the mobility of armies has been enormously increased by railroads and automobiles.

PROVING THEIR METTLE.

"The war in Europe is having one good effect, at any rate."

"And what is that?"
"It has put a stop to the sale of foreign titles to American heiresses."

"Quite true. Still, foreign noblemen have been making such a good showing since the war began that some of them have even earned the respect of their American fathers-in-law."

A GOOD CLEANSER.

"I have always read the 'house hold hints' department in the newspapers."

"Why, you're a bachelor."

"That's true. Still, I like to be well informed. For instance, that's how I learned that ammonia is used for something else besides making ice."

AN ADVANTAGE OF AGE.

"They don't do the modern dances very well, do they?"

"They ought. They've got four daughters at home to teach 'em."

BOUDOIR CONFIDENCE.

THE WISE FOOL.

"Two rights never make a wrong," quoted the Sage.

"They do when they happen to be shoes," replied the Fool.

USELESS FEARS.

"Do you think it implies bad luck to be married on Friday?"

"I don't think the day makes the slightest difference."

NOT JUST YET.

"Why doesn't congress investigate this European war?"

"Nobody in congress cares for that sort of junket."

A Strange Story.

Argyle, Mich.—Mrs. Wm. H. Carson, in a letter, from Argyle, says: "I was almost wild with a pain in my head, and other severe pains, due to womanly troubles. Cardui gave me great relief at once. Further use of Cardui raised me from my bed of agony. Cardui saved my life, and I can't be thankful enough for what it did for me." Whether seriously sick, or simply ailing, take Cardui, the woman's tonic. As a general tonic for women, to improve the appetite and build up the constitution, Cardui is in a class by itself. Those who have used it say it does the work; it relieves, it cures. Try it. Your druggist has it.

REMAIN HARD TO CONVINCE

It is Difficult to Persuade Some Men That the Climate Remains Unchanged.

The old inhabitant was a good deal closer to the out-of-doors than his sons and daughters ever were, the Toledo Blade remarks. In winter there was no escaping the snow and avoiding the blizzard in the shelter of superheated homes and office buildings. Houses were warmed by grates or stoves, and that called for regular trips to the woodshed, no matter how wild the weather or disagreeable the task.

The wind crept in, the snow whipped through the doors, the frost managed to drive his numbing chill through shutter and window pane. The old inhabitant knew what winter was and never held it in contempt.

That is why there is little chance of convincing the man who lived forty or fifty years ago that the climate has not changed. He feels there must be some mistake or misrepresentation in the government figures. He finds the extreme difficulty in believing that the records show a more or less sameness in the winter seasons of a half-century ago and those of this period. Time, he is ready to argue, will bring the vegetation of southern origin, bound to advance into the north if the barriers of climate permit.

It is probably impracticable to report weather in terms of comfort and convenience. It is too bad that it cannot be. For then statistics would not come into conflict with memory and get the worst of the battle.

TWO POINTS OF VIEW.

"A fellow told me yesterday that he didn't know one golf stick from another!" snorted the golf enthusiast. "Can you beat it?"

"Sure I can," replied the baseball fanatic. "I met an individual recently who didn't know what I meant when I said a pinch hitter planted a bingle in the right garden."

RAH! RAH! RAH!

"Yes," remarked the ex-umpire. "I prefer football to baseball."

"Because why?" queried his friend.

"In a game of football," explained his umps, "the players get the worst of it, while in baseball the worst of it all goes to the umpire."

THEN THERE'S TROUBLE.

"Americans are excitable people. Just let a man miss his train and he acts as if he were crazy."

"You don't realize what real misery is, though, until you meet an Englishman who has missed his morning tub."

ONE IN THE HOUSE.

"Sir, let me sell you one of our talking machines."

"Don't need one. I'm a married man."

TUBERCULOSIS COMMISSIONER

Here To Arouse Interest In The Proposed Sanitarium.

Mr. Severance, of the State Tuberculosis Commission, of Frankfort, is in the city for the purpose of arousing interest in the establishment of a county sanatorium. This question was submitted to a vote in 1913 and was carried by about 1,200 majority. Last year the Fiscal Court laid a small levy to start the work and Judge Knight appointed a county commission headed by Dr. J. E. Stone. The money available is less than $1,000 and no start has yet been made.

Mr. Severance's plan is to have a site selected north of town on an elevation with ground enough to raise chickens and keep some cows, and make some sort of a start this year with a temporary house and tents.

Just what the outcome of his visit will be is not now known. One vacancy on the county board exists, caused by the removal from the county of Rev. H. D. Smith.

So far as can now be recalled, the Tuberculosis Commission for Christian county, appointed last year, was composed of Dr. J. E. Stone, Rev. H. D. Smith, Jas. West, Thos. C. Jones, Douglas Graham, Mrs. F. K. Yost and Miss Katie McDaniel.

Miss Dorothy Becker.

San Francisco, Feb. 17.—Miss Dorothy Becker, the fifteen-year-old San Francisco swimmer whose aquatic feats have brought her into prominence, is to compete against the champion girl swimmer of America, Miss Ruth Stacker. The aquatic contest will take place at Honolulu.

Immediately after the contest Miss Becker will return to San Francisco to train for the exposition swimming races.

Miss Stacker, whose laurels the clever San Francisco mermaid will attempt to wrest, holds the record fifty yards in thirty-one seconds, and it is this speed which Miss Becker hopes to beat.

HOW TO MAKE A

CHILD STOP CRYING

In the March Woman's Home Companion appears a department called The Exchange in which readers give suggestions which have developed out of their own practical experiences.

A Massachusetts woman tells as follows how to make a child stop crying:

"It often happens that little children, especially those that are nervous or highly strung, are disposed to keep on crying when they get started. When you wish a child to stop sobbing get him to take a good drink of cold water. It almost always will stop the sobbing immediately."

Delicately Put.

Two sisters while visiting in Ireland in Victoria's time got into conversation one day with a tenant of their hostess. One of the girls, who is quite stout, asked the old woman if she would have known them for sisters. "Well," was the answer, "ye look alike, but yer sister's slender, while you, miss—well, you slender the quane."

SOLDIERS ORDERED TO TAKE A BATH

None Had Seen Soap or Warm
Water For Five Weeks.

London, Feb. 19.—A description of the soldier's monthly "official bath" is sent from the front by a member of a London Scottish Regiment:

"Yesterday we had a novel experience," he says. "As none of us had seen soap or warm water for over five weeks we were ordered to take an official bath. We were taken to a town in the rear of our lines and escorted to a large building, where facilities had been arranged for the purpose. In the first room we were numbered off into squads of ten men or so. In a second room we emptied our pockets and laid aside our boots, bonnets, puttees and sporrans. In a third room we threw the rest of our clothes into a heap, and then made a double-quick to the showers. There were two men to each shower, and we were allowed ten minutes under the hot water with a generous supply of laundry soap.

"At the end of our ten minutes, we hurried on to the drying room, where each man got a huge towel as thick and rough as a carpet. Then we rushed off to a dressing room, where an attendant gave us anything we wanted in the way of brand-new underwear, shirts and socks, while on hooks at one side were our clothes, which had been thoroughly fumigated.

"After we had got back our bonnets, boots and other property, we were ushered into a room where a squad of barbers awaited us. When they were through, we marched, spic and span again, into a tea room for tea and cigarettes. Could anything be better arranged?"

COMPLETE SYSTEM OF HOGGING OFF CROPS

Healthy Sow and Litter.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The familiar practice of hogging off crops has been developed by experts in the United States department of agriculture into a scientific system of farm management which, it is said, will minimize, in those sections and those farms to which it is adapted, the cost of harvest labor.

Reduced to its simplest terms this system, which is described in full in Farmers' Bulletin No. 614, "A Corn Belt System of Farming Which Saves Harvest Labor by Hogging Down Crops," consists of a four or five-year rotation of corn, corn, rye and a mixture of clover and timothy one or two years. A farm managed on this system should consist of four or five fields of from 20 to 40 acres each, and it is desirable that all the fields should be of approximately the same size. Farms should be laid out in accordance with the following plan:

1. Corn—First year to be hogged off.
2. Corn—Second year to be cut and rye sown.
3. Rye and Young Clover—Hogged off and pastured.
4. Clover and Timothy—Hog pastured.
5. Timothy and Clover—For hay or pasture.

Above is plan of a farm run on a five-year rotation.

In field No. 1 the first year corn is grown and hogged off as soon as it is ripe. This is generally from September 1 to September 10. When the corn is cultivated for the last time, it is usually desirable to sow soy beans or rape, in order that the hogs may have pasture while gathering the corn, and also because such a crop supplies valuable humus which can be turned back into the soil. In the following spring this field is prepared for second-year corn and becomes field No. 2 in the illustration.

Field No. 2 is, as we have seen, devoted to second year corn, which is not hogged off but harvested by hand. Here rye is sown in the fall. Under favorable conditions this can be done while the corn is still standing, but if necessary it is not too late after the corn has been cut and shocked. Rye may be sown much later than wheat, and this is one of its great advantages in a rotation such as is now being described.

Field No. 3 is devoted to rye throughout the entire season. In the spring it is pastured by the hogs as long as it is palatable, affording excellent pasture, especially for young hogs and brood sows. When the rye becomes tough and the hogs cease to relish it, they should be removed and not returned to the field until two

WHAT EVERY HOUSEKEEPER SHOULD DO IN MARCH.

In the March Woman's Home Companion appears a department called The Exchange, in which various contributors give their practical ideas—ideas that have developed out of their experiences. Following is the housekeeper's reminder for March, taken from this department:

"This is the month—
"To have a thorough housecleaning, not forgetting the cellar.

"To start the fight against the fly.

"To disinfect for moths, roaches, etc., before the breeding time.

"To spread fertilizer on the garden if it was not put on the ground in the fall.

"To prepare for the planting in the garden."

How to Clean Photographs.

In the March Woman's Home Companion appears a department called The Exchange, in which readers present practical suggestions which they have developed out of their experiences as housekeepers. In this department a Massachusetts woman tells as follows how to clean photographs:

"Photographs which have not been protected with glass and have become soiled either by dust or fly specks may be cleaned very easily by wiping them off with absorbent cotton dampened with pure alcohol."

Study America In 1915.

Not enough Americans have yet learned to appreciate the immensity, variety, and charm of their own country. Millions of them have been learning perfecture about the geography of Europe, Asia and Africa during the past six months. It would not be amiss for them now to add the study of America to their course in political and physical geography. This will not be a good year for American travel in Europe. Only those should think of crossing the Atlantic who have clear and definite reasons of a responsible kind for approaching the fringes of the great war. Travel, however, is not only one of the greatest sources of pleasure, but one of the chief means of education; and it should always be encouraged.

As many Americans as possible should resolve that they will know a great deal more about their own country at the end of the year 1915 than they knew at the beginning.

They should take the idea seriously.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for February.
